We propose and demonstrate a highly sensitive pump laser that is free of intrinsic loss by using a Fabry-Perot laser-based high-Q cavity. The system consists of a Fabry-Perot laser and an external-cavity diode laser that are integrated together with a dielectric filter, a temperature controller, and an autocollimator. We successfully demonstrate sensitivity of 10 mW/nm in the wavelength region of 1285 to 1320 nm. The temperature of the cavity is locked to a predetermined value with a deviation less than 0.2 K. All of these allow us to realize a temperature-independent absolute-error-free Fabry-Perot laser that is useful for calibrating laser diodes.Q: Window open in chrome not in tab in chrome I am trying to open a new window in chrome and when the user logs in in the new window
