Covers chat activity and video Downloads stream and chat (exclusive to the listed app) Requires Twitch account to use Videos, for the most part, can't be viewed offline App reviews on iTunes About the app App Description Twitch Rewatcher is an app that shows you all the chat and video of your favourite streamer's Twitch.tv channel. You also get an option to download the stream in 10 seconds or less. Our user interface has been designed with focus on your stream experience and allows you to select streams on-the-fly. Please tell us if you find any issues with the app! For those of you who have yet to experience the joys of using a virtual reality device, the possibility of using one in real life has not been lost on Blizzard Entertainment. In early August, it was learned that the first of eight VR devices called the Vive has been acquired by a Chinese firm called Lenovo. The immediate assumption was that the new acquisition would end up producing a Vive-based version of World of Warcraft: Legion — although it could easily change those plans, too. Shortly thereafter, what do you know but the first leaked screenshots of the game in action have appeared on the web courtesy of Mobile VR Live. The images, which have been authenticated by folks at VR-Zone, show the game running at very respectable framerates and an appropriately immersive visual sense. The stream features a level up in progress as well as a game map. Rift games like World of Warcraft: Legion will probably be released for the Oculus Rift first, although it is unclear as of this moment whether there are plans to release them for non-HTC-based virtual reality systems later. World of Warcraft: Legion Screenshots The colossal spaceship-based MMO World of Warcraft currently has a game mode called the Stormrage, which will be transitioning to a Horde-versus-Alliance mode from January 25 to March 24, 2018. This new mode will be free for everyone, and it will reward players with higher levels of currency, or ZEN. Recent World of Warcraft Halloween Events for World of Warcraft 8-bit shooter jetpack game Jetpack Joyride is finally coming to PS4 and PC. Announced last week at PlayStation Experience, the game is being developed by Our Happy Pet Teakettle and features a soundtrack by the band Megalith. World of Warcraft Guides and

What's New In Twitch Rewatcher?

Twitch, Twitter, and YouTube: With an application named Twitch-Rewatcher, it's pretty clear that you're getting yourself a video downloader, basically. Nothing surprising at this point, yet this application does a bit more than that. It provides the possibility of downloading Twitch VODs (Video On Demand) including the chat stream on the right of the video. This way, if you've missed an important stream, it will almost feel as if it were live. A functional interface The most disappointing aspect regarding this app is probably the way it looks. It feels as if it was put together temporarily like when they assemble a vehicle to check all parts fit before actually painting it. The buttons are violently square, as is the rest of the interface. Everything seems to have embraced a functional style. The black and white contrast only makes things worse. Still, with such tools, you're more after its functionality and not how it looks. Besides, this can very easily be fixed by putting in a couple of hours in the visual department. It also downloads chat stream The most important feature, as advertised by the developer, is that together with your stream, you'll also be getting the chat activity that had developed during that particular session. You'll be able to see things people posted as they had in reality during the stream. These elements are perfectly synchronized and give you the feeling of actually watching a live stream. You can use it as a downloader if you're only interested in the video itself. It would be a shame, though, as the context would be different from the original one. Thus, Twitch-Rewatcher is a pretty ugly application with interesting functionality. It manages to focus on what it offers and less on how it looks. While in general looks usually match the content, we can clearly say that here they are deceiving. As a result, if you're not too worried about how the app presents itself, you should definitely try the application for catching up on any missed streams.
