Chronicles of Magatia (CN) from OpenXcell is based on the legendary RPG series set in the land of Yaba, where fate itself is determined by fate-dice. In this game, you can use a bag containing characters and items from the series to take on the roles of "Magatians" who strive to end the ongoing war between good and evil in their village. The game play follows a turn-based system where you take direct control of your character as he/she chooses to move and act. You can even use items to unleash powerful moves as you engage the enemy. You will find that by choosing your actions wisely, you can get the best strategy for winning. Players will also be able to collect the Yaba System Cards, which use the Yaba system to unlock new cards and items. By playing the Yaba System Cards, players can learn the Yaba System where you are awarded with experience points and items as you gain their special effects. Using the Yaba System, you can easily build your own team of powerful Magatians!.O OZONE - UserAgent Our platform does not use this cookie, although we would appreciate it if you referred us. - OFFLINE - Standard This cookie is used to set an online session so that the user's selection (on our websites or emails) can be used when the user is offline. - PAYMENTS - UserAgent Cookies used for payments on our website. - PAYMENTS - SDX Our platform uses two cookies, one to track customers and one to pay the customers, we have decided not to use the online session cookie, therefore if a customer has two tabs open, the second tab (online session) will not be recognized, and this may lead to a problem when the customer tries to make a payment. - TOS - UserAgent Our platform uses a cookie to store the TOS and other information that is set in the users account, we don't use this cookie to get any information regarding the user's agreement, we just use it to keep the information in sync for the website or emails. - USER_TYPE - Standard Cookies to keep track of which type of user is accessing the website or by email. - SMTP_CONNECTION - Standard

What's new:

Knight Nyasha King is an educator, filmmaker and advocate for equal opportunity in education and civil rights for POC students. Nyasha's first documentary, My Black Campus, received an NAACP Image Award and is one of the pioneering documentaries that fueled Black public awareness of police brutality and prison reform. Her second documentary, The Deadliest Catch, is in post-production and will begin screening in the fall. TV Reviews All of our TV reviews in one convenient place. Prev Next View All The most recent episode of Penny Dreadful, "Pied Piper," opens on Sydney's arrival at Witchcraft's Thamesport Cemetery, which coincides with the arrival of Ethan (Josh Marquette). In a few short minutes, he and his everyman partner, Joe (Sam Riley), unveil the glitz and glamour of the subculture. Caroline (Penny Dreadful series creator, Tony Award nominated writer, and visionary producer John Logan) can con the likes of Ethan, but she can't bluff him. He comes for the truth. The plot of the episode takes some winding twists and turns, but it's all incredibly enjoyable. Dr. Frankenstein's monster and his buddies make their way from Frankenstein's house to the Cemetery, transformed by the people who've fed them. The twist? Those who help him are the monsters he made them out to be. No triumphal moment, just reveal after reveal. The less charming parents, with their hypocritical barnes-moore eye for the rich, are revealed as the Mayflower Madams, who care no more about their children than were the parents in the original manuscript. While Dr. Frankenstein's monster is out there cavorting with the unwashed, Ethan, Joe, and Sydney slip by unnoticed in a car filled with weapons and fighting preparations. I've watched Josh Marquette in bits of stuff on the big screen, but watching him in this episode was a definite revelation. Marquette is no slouch, and he's got some very impressive chops on the screen. His being cast immediately made me feel jealous, but I knew it would pay off. He's got range on the show. Also on the show this week is Seamus (Tunde Adebimpe). Cool and calm, he's got the perfect amount of makeup. He could be uncannily compared to Inception🔍 functions and the option to purchase an unlimited version of the game. Find the hidden objects (caves) on the map that are hidden and get points for it. You can also get more bonuses and levels by purchasing the game in various ways. A: How to find the hidden caves: From any place in the game you should press Ctrl+F1 and a blue plane of the map will appear. At the beginning the caves are not very easy to spot, but after a while they are a bit more easy to spot. Also, near caves that are high-level there is a white box with a white number, which you can find in the top left corner, this box represents how many times you have found all the caves and thus on how many times you will get the achievement If you click on the box you can change the number at the bottom, to make it easier to spot. A: There is a very important tip that will allow you to find all the caves in the game very quickly. The tip is to always use your trusty search tool to "Find All Players". This search tool can be accessed by pressing Ctrl+F1 from the main menu. The "Find All Players" will find all the caves in the game. The game will always inform you when you've found a cave, but you can stop it any time you wish. Q: Are two different instances of private nested class thread-safe? Suppose I have this class: class A { private class B { void foo() { // Do things } }

} void bar() { // Do things } } Will I run into thread-safety issues by calling `A a = new A(); a.B.foo(); a.B.foo();` or `A a = new A(); a.B.foo(); a.bar();`? I think I can justify that it would work just fine, as the instances of private nested class are initialized in the constructor and that the only thing ever being
