When this video was uploaded on Smartisan, it did not have more than 100 views. Now there are 677. This is, of course, wrong. The real issue is that the video is not on the Smartisan servers. The video is on a related site: https://jamd.org/t/wiseconverterpro23165... It looks like the video may have been uploaded from a Wii or a Nintendo DS emulator, which would explain the high score, as well as the low views. This is almost certainly the case, but I doubt that this is because the video has been hacked. I suspect it is because the video has been uploaded from a software that is incompatible with Smartisan, making the video not be able to load. The video is still viewable, and it has been uploading since 2014, so it is very likely that there is nothing wrong with this video. It is just a bad piece of software that the author is using. It may have been uploaded and saved by the author. It may even have been uploaded by the owner of the machine. If it were the latter, then it would make sense that the video was uploaded by the Nintendo DS emulator of the machine. Anyway, take the good news with you: It is not hacked or anything. Let's see if this video gets the views. If it doesn't, then I'll give the idea a look. It should be very easy to write a program that would correct this issue. Just get the video URL from your smartisan server, and then replace the URL with something like: https://www.allhousestube.com/video... For example, get the correct link: https://jamd.org/t/wiseconverterpro23165... and then replace the last part with a different link. This is a very useful website and can also be used to find other smartisan videos: https://jamd.org/t/smartisanhttps://trello.com/c/0Dst0iLA/14-link-dctxbb5-tools-v2203-hwk-by-sarassoft https://trello.com/c/2Wze0ml/34-wisevideoconverterpro23165portableactivator64bit 5ec8ef588b
